TUESDAY SVENING, AUGUST 23.

CHILD LIKE AND BLAND. - His Dame Was Moses Sparrow. He was very green. That was the idea that a ways came toto Miss Page" mind when she looked at her country landlady' soo. Such a rustic youth, with such fair hair, worn long, such big blue oyes, such sloping shoulders, such a land like expression. And, being there at the farm house, whither she had been sent to speed the summer months, the city beile resolved that she would try her power of fascination upon the boy who struck her as so good a sutject to: flirtation, in which all the fun was to be on her side and all the sensiment on his. And at it she went, beginning with a smile, a look, a word, and rei icing to see the fish tite so readily. She enjoyed herseif very much until she grew tired of it; and then she decided on breaking the heart she had woo, and erjoying the crash. So she turned him cu ie the garden and made him sit beside her on the beach under the wis arres, and said, sadly "I'm going home nex: week. I shall send you wedding cards when I am manied. I am to be married to a rebod gentleman next win-Then she waited to see him drop at her feet; but he did not drop. He only said: "Wal, I'm real glad! I kinder felt afraid I'd been goto' too far with you. I'm a sort o' butterfly, flirein' from flower to fl wer you know ; and I her fi rted win jeu, I du allow. I was afraid you'd go off into a decline or suthin'you seemed to set so much on me-if you heered sudden-like that me and Ann Maria was keepin' steady company. Bu , law, secce you're goin' to be married there sin't no harm done! I shouldn't hev lik d you to drown yourself, like t'other summer boarder did, in the millpond. She had my photograph in her preket when she was fished out." Then he smiled at Miss Page, and she areas and sailed away from him with great dignity.
